

Alice Andrews Is Honor President; SGA President Is Bonnie Ramsey

Last night in George Washington Auditorium it was announced that Alice Finch Andrews had been elected as Honor Council President for the year of 1963-64. Alice was elected by a majority on the first ballot.

This was the result of nearly two weeks of constant activity for the three candidates for this position. Each had presented her platform to the student body. Then, the students were given a chance to ask individual questions when the candidates appeared in the dorms for "buzz sessions." Other activities included the candidates' planning with campaign managers, advisors, and the present officers of S.G.A.

The winning candidate, Alice Andrews, is from Richmond, Virginia and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Andrews. She is an English major, and upon graduation, she plans to teach in an elementary school.

Alice has shown her capacity as a leader during the three years that she has been at MWC. Her freshman year, she was elected vice-president of Willard Dorn. The following year, she gained more experience in leadership when her classmates elected her president of the Sophomore Class. Also, at this time, she learned about the functioning of Honor Council when she served as a member. In recognition for Alice's achievements up to this point, she became the recipient of

The Outstanding Sophomore Award

This year, she has gained further experience with the judiciary part of Student Government, by serving as the S.G.A. Judicial representative from her junior class.

Contributing much to numerous committees on campus, Alice has served on the Steering Committee, which is made of numerous groups that lead and train others for leadership. At the present time, she is working with the May Day Committee.

Alice's scholastic attainments have been recognized by the fact that she is a member of the Sigma Tau Delta Honorary Fraternity, an organization for those students who have excelled in their work in English.

This versatile girl also represented her Sophomore Class in May Court.

Some of her outside interests include soccer and tennis.

One of the main points in Alice's platform is that she would like to see the positions on Honor Council become major positions and be filled by four girls that were elected for this purpose. This would take the responsibility of Honor Council from the class presidents and would lead to a stronger Honor Council.

Alice will be officially installed as Honor Council President at a Convocation in George Washington Auditorium on April 10.

Winning Speeches

By ALICE F. ANDREWS

Purpose without action is useless. Action without purpose is senseless. Either of these without achievement is emptiness. But, together—purpose, action, and achievement—give us progress.

Tonight we are concerned with this end-product, progress, and its relationship to our Honor System. Here at Mary Washington the Honor System is an effective and cherished tradition. From each individual who agrees to live under its code, it demands a strong sense of personal integrity. In return, the Honor System encourages mutual trust and faith in human nature.

Our Honor System is very effective, but because of increased needs it is not as efficient as it must be. Currently the Honor Council is composed of the class presidents, who review and try those cases involving a breach of the Honor Code. Although these council members have done an outstanding job in this capacity, their other great responsibilities prevent them from having the necessary time to meet the growing need for increased honor counseling. I feel that we could strengthen our Honor System by establishing a separate class of office for Honor Council representatives. This would mean that the class presidents would no longer have to serve on council.

In addition to hearing cases, one of the major duties of the new class honor representatives would be the screening and selection of applicants for honor counseling. These honor instructors are vitally important because they are the first link between the freshmen and a meaningful honor system. It is from them that the freshmen receive their first impression of what our Honor Code really means. For this reason, the counselor must be carefully selected according to her personal integrity and carefully trained to convey to new students her sincere devotion to our Honor System and to our college.

In addition to selecting the honor or instructors, the Honor Council representatives would have the responsibility of planning and executing an effective training program for the new honor counselors and later for the incoming freshmen.

This plan of electing class Honor Council members would have to be approved by you, the student body, and directed through the proper college officials before it could become effective. Accordingly, the election could not be enacted until next spring. This is not to say that our chances of establishing this new council are dim. We have a concrete purpose and a clear course of action: our goal can be achieved.

There is much we can do in the next four months to strengthen our Honor System. Meetings with the faculty are needed immediately to confirm the bond of trust between the student and the administration. At present the honor

The Student Government at Mary Washington includes each and every one of us. We as individuals form the complex mechanism which sets Student Government into motion. It is only by every individual's participation that we may have an outstanding Student Government. No one person alone nor even a group of persons can make Student Government what it should or could be. It takes the ideas, hard work and enthusiasm of every one of us to accomplish the goals we set.

Because Student Government is given to us—and because it is ours—our possibilities for improvement are unlimited. But, first of all, we need to reach each and every student to make sure that she is aware of what is being offered, before we can ever hope to improve or take advantage of our vast opportunities.

By fully opening our channels of communication, we may bring Student Government closer to the students and in doing so bring the student nearer to Student Government. Then we will have meshed into a unified body, willing to work together and capable of conquering any obstacle that may hinder the realization of the aims of Student Government.

Therefore, participation by every student linked with communication is the framework of a successful Student Government, and these two words—communication and participation, one following the other—form the essence of my platform.

If elected, my goals for Student Government would include the following:

1. Student formal committees which elect their own chairmen and organize themselves in order to have more student leadership and participating in Student Government.
2. An SGA Publicity Representative in each dorm directly responsible for bringing all Student Government activities closer to every student.
3. A Hall Chairman training program to strengthen the link between House Council and the students themselves, to make hall meetings more valuable, to raise the importance of the Hall Chairmen in the eyes of the students, and to open more fully the channels of communication between Student Council and the members on each hall.
4. National recognition for MWC through more participation in conferences, utilization of NSA opportunities, and contribution of articles in well-known magazines.
5. Full use of the result of Student Evaluation sheets, and the continuance of student opinion polls on campus.
6. Greater cooperation with the Bulletin in working toward its new policy of coordinating publicity dates with major campus activities for better and more timely coverage, and encouragement of students to use the Bulletin more as a means of expressing their ideas.
7. Improvement of the Hand-

"Better communication and response with participation" is the goal of Bonnie Grace Ramsey, newly elected President of Student Government. Bonnie's election was announced in a student body meeting last night in George Washington Hall amid cheers and tears.

During the campaign, Bonnie brought out eight points which she hopes to incorporate during the coming year. A hall chairman training program is one of the more important points that Bonnie hopes to see accomplished during her term of office. This training program is proposed in order to strengthen the link between House Council and Student Government. Through training of hall chairmen will come more value and interest in the hall meetings.

Another point which Bonnie has stressed is more cooperation with the Bulletin in coordinating dates for major campus activities and for obtaining more lively and timely coverage of these activities.

Improvement in the handbook counseling program in order to give the freshmen a better understanding of and belief in the rules contained in the handbook is another accomplishment Bonnie hopes to make through the work of Student Government.

A new idea concerns a publicity representative in each dorm for the purpose of bringing all Student Government announcements and activities into each dorm so that each student may be aware of activities on campus.

Among her other eight points are student formed committees which elect their own chairmen and organize themselves in order to have more student leadership and participating in Student Government. Full use of the results of Student Evaluation sheets, more national recognition for MWC through utilization of NSA opportunities, and broadening the Pre-School Conference program to include more students.

Bonnie is well qualified and capable as Student Government president to carry out these eight points, for she has served as House President of Virginia Dormitory, as a member of Legislative Council of Student Government, as secretary of Alpha Phi Sigma and as a member of the Sophomore Leadership Training Panel. She will serve as co-chairman of House President's Training Program in the spring. In addition she has been a Dean's List student for four semesters.

counselors have no standardized method of testing their counsel- less. In my opinion the training sessions would be more effective if the freshmen were given a uniform test that encompassed general questions about honor and specific ones about the application of our Honor System. It is essential that each student has a complete understanding of our Honor Code order that she may accept with assurance its finality. Here at Mary Washington, honor is absolute. There is no middle road between honesty and dishonesty. Each of us is recognized as an honorable person. We are asked to strive to uphold its standards, we strengthen our own sense of personal integrity. Certainly if each of us realizes the purpose of our Honor System; if each of us takes the initiative to set to uphold its principles— we can be sure that we will achieve the inner peace that comes with unfailing loyalty to our ideals. Tonight we can take a step toward now is the time for progress.

John Dos Passos Will Speak Today

John Dos Passos, American novelist and writer in Residence at the University of Virginia, will open a two-day visit on the Mary Washington College campus Wednesday, February 20, with a reading from his works.

Dos Passos, a permanent resident of Westmoreland County, Virginia, will conduct a seminar Wednesday evening for students enrolled in special studies in American literature. On Thursday morning he will be available for individual talks with students.

The public is invited to the Wednesday lecture in duPont Theatre, scheduled for 4 p.m.

The author of more than a dozen novels, including U.S.A., Adventures of a Young Man, Three Soldiers, and Midwinter, he was the recipient in 1937 of the gold medal in fiction awarded by the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

A native of Chicago, he lived as a child in Mexico, Belgium, and England, and was graduated from Harvard. During World War I he served with the American Red Cross ambulance services in Europe and finally as a private in the United States Medical Corps. After the war, he worked as a newspaper correspondent and freelance writer in Spain, Mexico, New York, and the near East.

Dos Passos is the third American author to hold the title of Writer in Residence at the University.

Tricks Used In Campaigns

Since Monday, February 11, the campus has been covered with posters, badges, handbills, and pictures announcing and supporting the candidates for student body president and Honor Council President. Campaign managers, often supported by a committee of students, have used several different methods to call attention to their candidates' qualifications and platforms.

Joan Dolan, campaign manager for Carolyn Hawker, outlined her campaign procedure. This included posters in every dorm, mimeographed sheets of qualifications and platforms, small CH badges, and a campaign song. Joan said that the campaign was "frantic" The work to be done within the time limit caused this.

A red arrow was the eye-catching used by Kris Butler, campaign manager for Bonnie Ramsey. Kris explained that this was "something nearsighted people could see at a distance." Every poster and badge supporting Bonnie has the red arrow. Other campaign methods were handbills, songs, and word of mouth.

Van Newman's campaign manager, Ann Lindsey, had a Van representative in each dormitory. She also used posters, songs, and handbills. Campaign slogans used Van's name to an advantage in words such as advance, advantage, and New-Man.

The campaigns for Honor Council president have been quieter than those for SGA president. The campaign managers feel that this is more fitting to the dignity of the office.

Donna Glaspey, campaign manager for Alice Andrews, has used badges of a gavel with the campaign slogan. She said that the plans are to emphasize the platform and qualifications of the candidate without the use of gimmicks.

Kay Hatcher also has used no gimmicks in her campaign for Pat Flynn. Posters in a modern design using red, black, and yellow, and word of mouth circulation of ideas are the major methods used.

Anthropologist To Speak Here

The National Science Foundation, through the American Anthropological Association, has authorized an anthropologist to visit the campus for a three day lecture series, Feb. 27-March 1.

A cultural anthropologist, Dr. Stephen C. Cappannari, Director, Division of Human Behavior, School of Medicine, Department of Psychiatry, Vanderbilt University has been selected. Dr. Cappannari's visit will include classroom lectures, buzz sessions in the "C" shop and an all campus lecture on Thursday evening, February 28 entitled "Man and Culture." Sigma Omicron Chi, Honorary Sociological Association, will be host.

State Offers Scholarships To Sophomores, Juniors For Study in Great Britain

An opportunity to study in an English or Scottish University is open to sophomores and juniors at Mary Washington for the summer of 1963. An award of $800.00 will be presented to two students from the state of Virginia for such study by the Virginia Branch of the English-Speaking Union.

The purpose of the award is to provide for study abroad and to enable the students chosen to travel in Great Britain and gain a more complete knowledge and understanding of the British people. Students applying for the scholarship must meet exacting requirements, indicate qualities for potential leadership, and be in agreement with the purposes of the English-Speaking Union. The Union works for a closer cooperation among all the people of the world who speak the English language.

Winners of the award may choose the university and course of study from a group of three. The University of Birmingham will offer a course in Shakespeare at Stratford-upon-Avon, and other courses will be offered at the University of Oxford, and the Scottish Universities in Edinburgh.

Additional information about the scholarship and instructions for application can be obtained from Mr. Edward Lowry, professor of English and chairman of the Committee on Academic Excellence. Applications from the college must be in by March 1.

Approximately eighty-five per cent of the student body voted in the Monday night primary election for SGA and Honor Council presidents.

The total number of votes Monday night was 1466 (including 16 day students); the number of students voting in the runoff election yesterday was 1192 (including 9 day students).

The six candidates listen attentively to a question during the buzz session in Virginia dorm.

in home economies at Pratt University, so this field is not a new one for Bonnie.

The Ramsey family includes five people. Lloyd Albert Ramsey, Bonnie's father is a retired colonel in the United States Army and is now employed by the Bonroughs Corp. as a senior engineering on Military Systems Division. Her mother, Grace Beeler Ramsey is a homemaker. A thirteen-year-old brother, Lloyd Andrew, ("Buck") and a six-year-old sister Virginia Beth, ("Gimmy") and Bonnie make up the rest of the family.

As an army family, the Ramseys have traveled quite a bit and have lived in New York, where Bonnie was born, in Kansas, in Tennessee, in Pennsylvania, their present home, and in Tokyo, Japan. While living in New York, Col. Ramsey was professor of Holstra College in Albany.

In addition to the five Ramseys, a sixth person frequently visits the Ramsey home. He is Jon Allen Kerr, the current president of the Sigma Phi Epsilon House at the University of Virginia, and Bonnie's "pin mate."

Also delighted about Bonnie's election is Kristina Butler, Bonnie's campaign manager, who was instrumental in promoting her successful campaign, and in installing red arrows encouraging students "to go in the right direction" and vote for Bonnie Ramsey.

Book Contest Rules Given

- The rules of the MWC Collectors' contest are printed below for those students interested in entering.
